Let's try to break up the broad category of condiment sets and just post the pictures of ones that are figural this time. Foods, people, cars, etc.

Nancy, Does the top of the girl come off, or is that a double?

Debi

16 Nancy Villaverde

11-09-2010 02:16 PM ET (US)

The joint at the girl's middle is just a second bobble joint, one for the head and one for the upper body. She would be a double.

Nice collection, PJ. I have the Bombay copy but forgot about it. It really is nice. Too bad they went out of business. Love the ducks, they are adorable. I also have #20, the French man, but when I got him he was dirt cheap because he was glued back together in several places. I love him though, he does display nicely and I think of him as a "war veteran."

11-12-2010 05:23 PM ET (US)

Yes Nancy... Sort of a French Freedom fighter... He is in fact a HB Quimper...

Still have all my salts in boxes... my 'refurb' has been a total disaster !!! everything that has been done has had to be re-done and redone again... because they brought in outside contractors (untried and untested) nothing was done right !!! Cabinet doors that don't fit right... curtain rods that are not right... wrong paint on baseboards and molding... breaking my cook top... imagine putting in a microwave in that is against a wall and you can't even open the door !!! It's just one screw up after another... I'm just so tired and exhausted and just soooo sick and hurting so !!! I just can't think straight anymore...

Somehow I thought I had more figural condiments... I just don't know anymore.... so... until we get onto another topic... I guess that's all I have for now... I'll have fun watching for everyone else's though...

I'm still here even if you don't hear from me for a while !!!
Love to all... 'The Salty Nut'... P.J.

I hope the refurbishment mess is finally resolved, P.J. I've know people driven almost crazy by building or remodeling a home. As we say in Hawaii, try to "hang loose."

PJ: Sounds like you need Holmes on Homes. Too bad he's based in Canada. It's a program on the DIY Network. I just saw an episode where they put the microwave above the stove but right against another cabinet so the microwave door wouldn't open all the way. In fact, all the filler strips for the cabinets were stuffed behind the crown molding. It was too funny. Nothing was level, crooked doors, etc. Those had to be some really dumb cabinet installers. Sounds like your contractor hired them. You have my sympathy. I'm glad I watched all those programs on HGTV and DIY over the years. No one does anything in this house without me watching what they do and if it isn't right, they don't get to leave until it is. I only wish I could still move like I used to. Last major thing I did was retile the small bathroom and even then getting up and down from the floor was hard on the knees.

Had to take some pictures of my condiment sets. Figured I might as well take different angles and start to record my collection. Lots of pictures but not much order to them. Maybe doing them by category will get me started in the right direction.

Wow! Rude salts! lol The face on your guy with basket on his arm is pretty scary. Some of the faience ones are very crudely painted, but they all have charm. That's one area in which I have nothing.

Does a little car qualify as a figure ?? Missing a salt/pepper top - any spares?

44 "The Salty Nut"... P.J.

11-17-2010 05:12 PM ET (US)

The engine cover comes off and is the mustard/mayo pot... think I got him in Belgium ? France some time ago... Never found a top for the salt / pepper... that shaker has a rounded back... interesting...

45 "The Salty Nut"... P.J.

11-17-2010 05:13 PM ET (US)

How about a thistle set ??? Does that qualify ???

46 "The Salty Nut"... P.J.

11-17-2010 05:15 PM ET (US)

The pepper shaker sits on a peg and comes off as does the mustard / mayo pot.

Just a suggestion... but... How about condiment sets with A MISSING PART !!!

You know... a missing mustard top, a missing oil or vinegar top, or even a whole piece !!! Maybe someone else out there will have the missing piece !!! and will help you complete your set !!! A suggestion would be that the set could only be missing ONE piece !!! Like my little car in #43 ??? Just a suggestion...

PJ: You can always post a picture of your set and ask for people to watch for a missing part on the chat page or the Open Salts PLUS chat page. Have you tried doing an internet search for replacement shaker tops?

Does your Thistle set have a cobalt liner inside the mustard? If so, your salt section may be missing one. I have seen sets with and without liners. They may not all be the same and some may have liners and others do not. By the way you can see the design inside the salt, my guess is there should probably be a liner because it is not smooth.

Your curling set is very nice. Sport themes are usually high priced and hard to find. That reminds me that we have some golf themed ones. Can't do any new pictures though until I get a new picture program to replace mine that won't play nice with Windows 7. It's on it's way.

PJ: Love your sets, they are all so beautiful! There is a site for replacement shaker tops. This is the link: www.cbantiques.com. I just looked at it and it seems very good.

Here's an ugly lady to go with your ugly men!

70 Nina

11-20-2010 01:05 PM ET (US)

I guess I might have gone too far over the edge and made the photos too small. Oh, well. At least you can see what they are. I really need to polish silver and dust in a case or two! Inez... I've got loads more condiment sets - just not what I'd consider figural (other than some duplicates of ones already shown). I do have a cranberry in wheelbarrow form holder. Oh, well... off to clean... no more time for salting today!

71	Mary Kern Nina - I need to tell you that I COVET your Faience donkey !!!! Nuff said - Mary	11-20-2010 02:21 PM ET (US)
72	Debi Raitz I've never seen a double donkey with a mustard either. Really nice ones Nina. I must have a case of CRS because I don't remember anything about that matching second spoon. Debi	11-20-2010 02:30 PM ET (US)
73	Debi Raitz Nina: Your ugly lady looks like a good match for my ugly man. Same color base and yellow rather than white condiment holders. I knew there was a woman out there for my ugly man! Debi	11-20-2010 03:31 PM ET (US)
74	Nina My ugly woman might be a good color match for your ugly man, Debi.... But she might be better suited to Nancy D's, since my lady's head has been knocked off and glued back on. (She was also cheap!) The squirrel condiment came with a mustard spoon that has a twig handle. When you saw it (at my house, I think, when we were doing the book), you thought you had a salt spoon that looked like the mustard. You sent it to me. It was a perfect match! Mary... As much as I love you, you can NOT have my donkey. I LOVE that donkey. I think someone tied that piece of twine around the donkey's neck and attached it to the mustard lid, but I like it. It keeps the lid from getting lost and adds a little interest. So I've always kept it just the way it came out of the box!	11-21-2010 01:30 AM ET (US)
75	Debi Raitz Just as I suspected...Dead brain cells gone for good. I have absolutely no recollection of that spoon. Debi	11-21-2010 02:49 AM ET (US)
76	Nancy Dietel Nina: I am crazy for your Mt. Fuji set and I always love the pink pigs. Watch out if I ever come to your house. Better lock them up! lol Nancy D	11-21-2010 10:48 AM ET (US)
77	Nina	11-21-2010 12:38 PM ET (US)

Sticky fingers aside, Nancy, you and your husband "Jim" (aka Don) are welcome any time!

It is cold, cold, COLD here in Michigan! Made me think about getting out the hats and boots for winter. When the new page is posted on December 1, it will be for shoes, boots and hats salts. Don't think there were any mittens but my hands are so cold right now I wish I had some on.
