Sorry I'm a couple days late but I was at the MOSS Meeting this weekend at the Heisey Museum. I think everyone had a great time. On Friday evening we picked our own salt to make, picked the color(s), and plunged the bowl by hand. We got them the next day at our meeting at the museum. This was really a lot of fun. Sue Sawyer did a wonderful job as meeting hostess and the Heisey Museum was a wonderful setting. I bet everyone had a great time!

OK, this month let's try two different types of flower salts. Until mid-month, let's post pictures that are actually flower shaped salts, then the last couple weeks we will post pictures of salts with flowers on them. Let's see how many different ones we can find.

Sorry the photos are so large, Debi! My computer isn't allowing me to re-size today, for some unknown reason. :(

This site now automatically resizes pictures down to 500 pixels across so anything larger will be brought down to this size. It's still a little on the large size for salt pictures, but at least everyone doesn't need to learn to resize before posting.

Pink Tulips and blue Morning Glories are my two favorite flowers. A salt at the top of my Want List is H&J 4687. It's called a Lily in the book, but that is obviously wrong.

Judy ~ what a unique lotus flower with the painting on the side! Love it!

24 Debi Raitz

05-07-2010 03:54 PM ET (US)

Judy in Texas: What is that on the lotus flower? I know that's a newer salt but is it hand painted or is something else applied? Looks like it is a raised design, not just painted.

The "Flowers" on the Lotus flower are some sort of metallic...Not sure what. The design is raised. The seller indicated it was "Sand blasted" to create this effect. I'd say that is very possible...Something has given the background glass a texture that certainly looks like it was sanded with very fine sandpaper.

Love the flowers! Nancy D and Lyleann (I think) I have the delicate flower with matching spoon marked Rosenthal, just the R mark on the bottom. I think Ed Bowman and I discussed it here a while back. I saw it in an antique shop in the UK also identified as Rosenthal and priced fairly high, 75 pounds if I remember correctly. Of course, shop prices don't hold now.

 Nancy D: Your flower in post 32, looks like mine in post 2. Do you know anything about it? I've searched for it in my salt books, but have never been able to find out much about it. It was a gift to me from Helen Saults, and it's quite pretty.
 Lisa :)

35 Nancy Dietel 05-15-2010 11:42 AM ET (US)
 Hi, Lisa, I believe it is the same salt. I realized it after I had posted it. No markings on it, but it is very delicate. I bought it from Lesley on the Buy/Sell page when she was selling a collection for one of the New England/OSCAR members. I was looking for the paperwork, but can't find it.
 Maybe Lesley knows more.
 Nancy D

36 Lisa Tiedeman 05-15-2010 05:51 PM ET (US)
 Nancy ~ I also think the salt is very delicate, and pretty! :) No markings on mine either, and that is why I am curious to find out a bit more about it. When Helen gave it to me she said I could find it in OSC, but I have looked and have yet to find it.
 Lisa :)

37 Nancy Dietel 05-16-2010 10:42 AM ET (US)
 My "Daisy" flower on post #26 is a pedestal salt in OSC #635. I took the photo from the top, but from the side, it has a green foot and the flower top looks a lot like our salt in post #2 and #32. The "daisy" is not nearly as delicate as this latest one, but it is just as lovely.
 Still looking for the info that I got from Lesley.
 Nancy D

38 Nancy Dietel 05-16-2010 01:30 PM ET (US)

Lisa: I was completely off base on post #32. I found my card on it and I bought it from Ed and Kay Berg in 1994! The reference I have on it is H&J, #1293, no marks, just under 1" high, circa 1900.

Nancy D

39 Lisa Tiedeman

05-17-2010 10:52 AM ET (US)

Nancy ~ Yes, there it is, in H&J! After so much searching I never saw it. The color is a bit different than the ones you and I have, but it is the same. Thank you so much for looking it up for me!

Lisa :)
