Black swan. This is actually black plastic with brass. I've always wondered if it is a salt or an ashtray. Even though it looks like a cigarette notch, it's so short that a cigarette would fall off. And I don't feel plastic is well suited for an ashtray, but it still may have been the intended use.

39 Jane Koble 10-04-2012 04:19 PM ET (US) IP: 98.237.120.56	No, the signature was incised into the pottery before it was fired. Jane
40 Nancy Villaverde 10-04-2012 04:29 PM ET (US) IP: 50.113.34.151	I have some miniatures like that too, not exactly salt shaped so I didn't show them on this topic. I have had a few with the signature just written on the bottom too, wonder about them. It seems a poor way to sign a piece.
41 Debi Raitz★ 10-04-2012 06:37 PM ET (US) IP: 24.192.249.13	Nancy: Do you think it might be possible that it's not actually a signature, but a note made about the maker by a previous owner or the seller? Pencil would certainly not last long. It seems it may have been put there as a non-permanent note or reminder. Just my opinion though... Debi
42 Nancy Villaverde 10-04-2012 09:56 PM ET (US) IP: 50.113.34.151	If so, it wouldn't carry much weight as an ID. I'm not trying to sell any of the small group of NA pots I've kept because they are salt-size, but I do hope the Joy Cain ID is correct. It looks like her work. The deeply carved bowls in any size are really nice, most from Santa Clara or San Ille deFonso pueblos. (may have misspelled the last) Nancy V

195 Mary Kern 10-27-2012 08:09 PM ET (US) IP: 72.220.213.56	Oh DEBI DEBI - How about since some of the wood shown will be of recent vintage - We could combine Misc Materials with New Artisans - Salazar - Crider - Anderson - Fritz etc and show our November Thanksgiving gratitude for talented people still producing salts - Or even the new ones coming out enmass - Okay - I go away now - Feed us and cats --- The heat is back but at least not the humidity - Me
196 Debi Raitz★ 10-27-2012 10:03 PM ET (US) IP: 24.192.249.13	It IS Yvonne and David Whiteman. I bought one of his handmade salts and spoon at a convention once, and made him sign it for me. They were at one of the Fall MOSS meetings several years ago. Yvonne had quite a few salts for sale and afterwards listed on my website. Let's go with Contemporary or Newer salts only. That will take in all the newer wood ones as well. We had shells within the last year or so anyway, and there's not much else in natural materials. There should be a lot of newer salts, but do you want it to be newer hand made salts like the makers you mentioned? Or all contemporary salts which would encompass ones made by Summit, Mosser, Boyd, etc? Debi
197 Mary Kern 10-27-2012 10:24 PM ET (US)	All contemporary is fine with me - I have some by EE and Mosser and such that I adore - Along with the single artists that do handmade ones - They are all keeping the salt craze alive - Just my vote - If others want it limited to handmade - Also fine

IP: 72.220.213.56	by me - I am easy tonight because I am tired -- lol lol -- Nitey Nite - Me
198 Debi Raitz★ 10-28-2012 12:15 AM ET (US) IP: 24.192.249.13	Well, let's not try to put any specific dates on the new salts. I think we probably all consider anything after the 1960-70s as "newer" as opposed to our 1880-1910 antique salts or EAPG. There are quite a few contemporary salt makers, and some that weren't in business very long, like Pilgrim Glass. So let's go with any contemporary salts by any makers in any medium. That will cover a lot of ground and we should have a lot of pictures. Debi
