Favorites & Firsts

Your first salt - If you still have it or even remember what it was!

Your favorite salts of every shape, material, color, etc. And since we don't have just one favorite, let's see them all.

Then we can also post Christmas present salts later in the month.

I'm afraid this category is fairly disorganized, typical of my mind, but since I suggested it, got to get going with some favorites.
 If I had to pick one salt, this enamel on glass would probably be it.

19 Lynda LaLonde★ 12-02-2015 12:16 PM ET (US)	I have a happy face and tears of joy. Love you.
20 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 12:18 PM ET (US)	 Favorite broken salt. The base cleaved itself when I had had it for years. It's a good example of why this type is called opal glass. It's almost as beautiful as an opal.
21 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 12:23 PM ET (US)	 Favorite cut-to-clear. May be a nut dish. I bought a pair of these in York at The Red House antique shop. Some favorites win out because they are also souvenirs of a good time. Don't you think so?
22 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 12:24 PM ET (US)	 Favorite lacy. I don't have many, but I'm a sucker for opalescent glass. This basket of flowers isn't particularly rare, but the glass is lovely.

23 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 12:29 PM ET (US)	 Favorite condiment set. Pretty glass and funky little car holder.
24 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 12:33 PM ET (US)	 Favorite canary or vaseline glass salt. This is with a little black lite to show the glow.
25 E. Jane Koble★ 12-02-2015 03:31 PM ET (US)	Very nice, Nancy! We have that Vaseline and lot it, too.
26 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 03:38 PM ET (US)	I think I saw it on ebay not long ago, Jane, but I don't think it's very common. I got interested in vaseline glass after I met Dave Peterson, who has done a couple of books on that glass. It's an odd color and doesn't appeal to all. I have just a few pieces. I chatted with Dave on line and then met him at a glass show near Kansas City. He had a huge display of his own glass as well as a sale table.
27 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-02-2015 05:25 PM ET (US)	 My first salt. Look at it sitting there, all innocent of what it caused. It's Val St Lambert, so at least I recognized quality when it sparkled at me and I had to have it for no good reason. It also just reminded me how hard it is to photograph sparkly clear glass. I looked it up on ebay and their photos weren't good either.
28 Nancy Dietel★ 12-02-2015 07:19 PM ET (US)	This is a favorite Russian double that I found at our annual Antiques in the Park. It was very reasonable price and I was so happy to find it.

Decisions, decisions and much admiration for the salts already showing up.
My first salt found in the local antique store.
Made by Cornelius Saunders & Frank Shepherd in Chester 1891
I was fascinated, something so small and so old from a bygone era
(and if I found a couple more, they would not take up much room, would they) ☺☺☺

My first lacy. there's a bit of a story behind it. I'd had a bad day at work and decided to walk around the antique mall before heading home. I'd been looking at this piece for a couple years and that day decided it was mine. As I was paying for it I heard someone say something about not finding any salts as they walked out. The cashier and I stared at each other for a moment before we both started laughing. I have a feeling that if I wouldn't have gone there when I did it would have been gone the next time.

I love hearing the stories attached to some of the salts. I had a similar experience except I couldn't believe the same salt was still in exactly the same place as it was the first time I saw it. It was too expensive so I'd left it behind. When I returned a couple years later I asked to see it because the price wasn't visible. I was hoping it was marked down after two years and it was. Then the attendant told me since it was $99 it was close enough to their $100 limit of calling and asking the seller for a discount. So I got it for $80. It was my first Leeds salts.

44 Janelle 12-03-2015 04:23 PM ET (US)	Linda, That Art Glass salt is gorgeous, now where did you say you lived☺
45 Lynda LaLonde★ 12-03-2015 04:49 PM ET (US)	Linda, if I had that art glass salt, it would be my favorite.

47 E. Jane Koble★ 12-03-2015 07:05 PM ET (US)	You're right, Nancy, never hurts to ask.
48 Linda Houser 12-03-2015 10:00 PM ET (US)	Janelle, open a map of the US and stick your finger as near the center as you can. you should hit Nebraska, I live near(50+ miles east) of the big lake near the North east Colorado corner. does that make sense?? LOL I drool over your salts too, I'd love to visit your collection!! Jane & Lynda, glad you like the salt. Debi, would you believe that my salt sat in the same spot all that time, you could even see the dust around it. and I got the dealer to reduce the price, after I pointed out how long it had sat there.
49 Janelle 12-04-2015 06:52 AM ET (US)	Linda, it looks like you and your salts are safe. Darn. One good thing about these postings is is seeing such wonderful treasures. I stand at my cabinet and so many salts make me smile as I remember where they came from or their history. Luckily, I know with this group you will not think I am crazy. ☐

Janelle 12-04-2015 08:00 AM ET (US)	 A favourite because I did not think I would find one like it. I had seen one Mary had sold and it was very popular and I thought it so unusual and had admired it. A couple of weeks later I was browsing EBay when I spotted one as a BIN here in Oz. Not listed as a salt and still not sure if it really is but was I thrilled. Sometimes things are meant to be.
51 Jan Schmidt 12-04-2015 11:54 AM ET (US)	Linda H, I ADORE that lacy. Never seen that one before! Terrific find! Janelle, if you're crazy, you're in good company... Everybody, I LOVE this topic and learning about you all through your salts. Great fun!!!
52 Debi Raitz★ 12-04-2015 01:11 PM ET (US)	Janelle: My guess would be that your set might be ashtrays for a bridge game. Of course, what it really is, is a set of salts for a card game for when the host serves celery sticks as a snack.
53 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-04-2015 01:22 PM ET (US)	Most salt collectors are quite ready to "re-purpose" things we want to call salts. I suspect that almost all small intaglio pieces were ash trays or pin trays originally, but they are so perfect as salts. So we dub your set bridge salts, Janelle.
54 Don Rabourn 12-05-2015 03:28 PM ET (US)	I agree, that most Intaglios were probably meant for ashtrays or pin trays, but that doesn't make me "love them" any less!! I have one Intaglio that has a perfume bottle that sits in it, and one that has a pepper shaker to match. So we'll call them whatever we want to call them!
55 E. Jane Koble★ 12-05-2015 08:45 PM ET (US)	I even have some that were definitely made to be ashtrays, and I love them, too!

My damaged room is now repaired. Del (owner) finished Saturday. The babies and I put as much back as we physically could. Still have heavy boxes blocking my salts. I should be able to get at some. Highlight was having Morgan and Nadia handling my salts. The ooohing and Ahhhing was fun. Course we dropped a couple...no damage except for my heart. They LOVE to see and handle the salts.

Stockwell Ltd.
70 Janelle Jefferson 12-08-2015 04:58 AM ET (US)	Kent, that is amazing. Thank You. I never thought I would ever know who made the actual salt. This is my favorite Satsuma. There are several reasons: 1, it's very beautiful, 2, heavy gold decoration, and 3, I bought it from Mimi Rudnick, the Salt Lady. She explained all about Satsuma and how the shape was so different. A bit larger than an individual salt, but really not a Master.

102 Mary Kern 12-15-2015 06:19 PM ET (US)	 I know I dropped a shocking bomb on the home page with my admitting to doing research - and now here is another shocker -- This is my FAVORITE English Art Glass in a Holder -- It is also my ONLY English Art Glass in a Holder --

103 E. Jane Koble★ 12-15-2015 09:02 PM ET (US)	And it's green! I sure would love to study that more closely.....
104 Janelle Jefferson 12-16-2015 07:20 AM ET (US)	Guess what Mary, We Got A Pair. You are being lead slowly to the dark side. Art Glass Salts and pairs. 😊
105 Janelle Jefferson 12-16-2015 07:25 AM ET (US)	 One of my favourite silver salts. They are a bit different, They are English and they are mine cause they have J J on them.
106 Sue Sawyer 12-16-2015 07:28 AM ET (US)	Wow, Janelle, stunning! Love the silver salts.
107 Janelle Jefferson 12-16-2015 07:55 AM ET (US)	Thanks Sue, they are actually designed the pour salt through the little hole at the end so no spoon required. They are just that bit different. No other maker copied them so I don't think they were an earth shattering invention.😊
108 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-16-2015 12:32 PM ET (US)	Mary, I've heard that English art glass salts wither away and die of loneliness if they don't have company. You should hunt for company for your green one, maybe a nice cranberry.
109 Mary Kern 12-16-2015 09:54 PM ET (US)	I don't know for sure - but me thinks you be trying to trick me Nancy Hmm - Janelle mentions the dark side - Nancy speaks of withering away -- Looking at it now - I think I may be on the right track with only one of everything --- EXCEPT Cats of course ..
110 Jytte 12-17-2015 02:51 AM ET (US)

	 Beautiful salts Mary and Janelle And thanks for the comments on my Kaj Franck salts This art-glass-salt is one I do like very, very much
111 Janelle 12-17-2015 06:07 AM ET (US)	Jytte you have such an amazing collection, so many are on my favourite list. Plus everytime I check your site out I see so many unusual salts. You should be very proud.
112 Sue Sawyer 12-17-2015 06:34 AM ET (US)	Janelle, I have one of the "pour" salts somewhere and love it. If I ever get everything unpacked I'll post it.
113 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-17-2015 11:49 AM ET (US)	That art glass is sooo lovely, Jytte.
114 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-17-2015 11:59 AM ET (US)	 Many of you know Shirl from Australia. She sent me a photo of a salt she bought as a Christmas present for herself. She would like to know anything about it and suggested I might post it here. I doubt that a specific maker can be identified, but it's a lovely piece of glass.
115 E. Jane Koble★ 12-17-2015 02:58 PM ET (US)	I'm sure it's English Stourbridge, but other than that.....
116 Susie P 12-17-2015 04:08 PM ET (US)	Shirley, Just lovely!!!! A wonderful present🎄🎄🎄❤. Good for you!! Nice of you to post it, Nancy V😊
117 Janelle 12-17-2015 04:44 PM ET (US)	I was looking at the salt Shirley Bought and loved the colour combination. It was a large salt so probably a master. It would be a Very nice Christmas present.
118

Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-17-2015 05:19 PM ET (US)	I'm with you, Jane. I think it's unlikely to pin down a maker though. Everyone just attributes the art glass in stands to Webb, but it's usually a guess. This one is such thick glass that I doubt it's from Webb. It does look large enough to be a table or master salt though I didn't ask Shirley for measurements.

Somehow missed all the lovelies below; Mary, I am sure your art glass could visit with mine here; just sayin😊😊 Jytte, blown away by your art glass and that stunning pair you just won, wow! Good for you! Janelle, you too have many unusual beautiful pieces and sets and pairs!!! We definitely are on the dark 😊😊 side together!!

	Shirl, glad you posted; hope to see you more often here😊😊. You have some beauties too; so fun when we can share and visit with everyone!!!!
122 Susie P 12-18-2015 05:14 AM ET (US)	This was one of my very first salts; I really collected Czech perfumes, and thought this would like nice next to my bottles-then look what happened????? Ha! My first sellers were probably Mary and Debi; they were so encouraging and answered lots of questions!!! Lots! They are the main reason I blossomed into a salt collector!
124 Susie P 12-18-2015 05:18 AM ET (US)	 I forgot the pic, too early, haha
125 Janelle 12-18-2015 07:20 AM ET (US)	Ooh I like that Susie. That one would encourage anybody to collect salts. Shirley, great to see you here.
126 Debi Raitz★ 12-18-2015 07:32 AM ET (US)	Hi Shirl! Long time. So tell us more about all of your ruby stained salts being in Minneapolis now. Is there a website so we can see them? I should have had you send lots of pictures for a Gallery topic long ago and now it's too darn late...unless you have pictures of them. Let me know.
127 Linda Houser 12-18-2015 04:37 PM ET (US)	Mary I'm thrilled you like the art salt, it was reallllllly hard to give up, but since I had two, I felt someone else should get to enjoy it, Glad to hear others have similar ones !! Hope all the injured and sick are on the mend, and that no one has any problems in the next two weeks or so! Jytte, you keep us drooling!

133 Susie P 12-19-2015 07:48 PM ET (US)	Stunning Shirl!!! So glad you are sharing with us, good to see you!
134 SHIRL 12-19-2015 08:14 PM ET (US)	THANKS SUSIE ,HORRIBLE PHOTO CANT GET RIGHT WITH THIS TINY DIGITAL CAMERA ,I AM USED OF THE OLD FLOPPY DISC, XXXXXX SHIRL
135 E. Jane Koble★ 12-19-2015	Sorry you didn't get here, Shirl. Unfortunately sometimes no matter how much you want something you don't get it.

08:20 PM ET (US)
136 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-19-2015 09:32 PM ET (US)	That agate pair are gorgeous, Shirley! Are they agate stone or china that looks like agate with silver fittings? I've never seen any like them though I have some Macintyre china salts in black and brown patterns.
137 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-19-2015 09:36 PM ET (US)	One of my favorite Christmas gift sales was back in the days when eBay was more flexible. I listed the mate to the salt I posted here, blue cut to clear, and a man emailed me to say his wife had admired it but thought it too expensive. He wanted to buy it as a surprise Christmas gift, so I sold it to him, took a check, and mailed it to a neighbor's address so his wife wouldn't know about the buy. That couldn't be done now.
138 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-19-2015 09:37 PM ET (US)	I just rolled the page back. The salt was #21.
139 Mary Kern 12-19-2015 10:26 PM ET (US)	Shirl - what a delight to see you here - Got to get caught up on my personal e-mails - Got my salts and plan to share pictures tomorrow or the next day or next week or -- lol lol Yep Linda ya done good sending me that one - I do love it but cannot say so in public you know -- When can we show our Christmas salts - ooops -- I guess after Christmas huh -- Maybe tomorrow I will spend the whole complete and entire day on the computer - e-mails - salt pictures - selling - or maybe I will just sip hot cocoa with colored marshmallows -- and a cookie
140 shirl 12-20-2015 04:07 AM ET (US)	hi Mary THANKYOU SO GLAD YOU LOVE YOUR SALTS, XXX HUGS HOPE YOU ARE ON THE MEND NANCY THANKYOU THE AGATE ARE QUITE HEAVY STONE AGATE I WILL TRY TO GET A BETTER PHOTO TAKEN ,I HAVE CHINA AGATE FROM MUMS CABINET THEY WOULD BE NEARLY 180 YRS,.shoes and double EGG baskets SALTS

142 Debi Raitz★ 12-20-2015 05:46 AM ET (US)

This is one of my favorite pottery salts. It mimics the Royal Doulton mortarboard salt but it's not by RD. Even the registration mark is a copy of what's on the RD one, but I can't find anything on the Cole mark. Larry said he thought Cole might have been a department store in England years ago, but it's a mystery since there was nothing on Bing.

I love a lot of the art glass salts but told myself long ago that most were a bit too pricey for me. This is one of the few I have. It's a strange color combination with the vaseline and opalescent blue glass.

152 Debi Raitz★ 12-20-2015 10:51 PM ET (US)	Jytte: Your shelves are quite stunning as they are! LOL Out of all my salts, that would be one of the last to go if I did any major selling off since it's one of the very few art glass I have.
153 Jytte 12-21-2015 01:37 AM ET (US)	 Debi - I do understand you!!! - but it is one of the most beautiful ArtGlass salts I've ever seen My first and surely also my last "Flora Danica"
154 Mary Kern 12-21-2015 11:37 AM ET (US)	Now see I will take your Flora Danica over the art glass every day -- We are so lucky that our tastes are diverse or we would not have much "Joy" in our monthly topics --
155 Mary Kern 12-21-2015 11:42 AM ET (US)	 Milky white smooth sided Greentown wheelbarrow - This was one from my Grandmother's collection and so one of my first salts - It also was my "introductory" to Ed and Kay Berg - At one time I only had the H&J and I was getting so confused with the information in it about these wheelbarrows so I wrote them - and the rest is history -- Also had a ton of new "friends" when I posted it on the Greentown collector's site - It is an extremely unusual color and having the remains of a decal -- Lost my new friends when I would not sell -- Oh well --

156 Mary Kern 12-21-2015 11:45 AM ET (US)	There is a master I would like to try and find in the garage before the month is up and post a picture of - It is a simple clear one -nothing unique or special - But it is the one that introduced me to Jane - Jane in turn introduced me to all the books and the clubs and a friendship deeper than sisters - I have to go now --
157 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-21-2015 12:15 PM ET (US)	Debi, you posted some great ones! That Doulton pair can't be beat, and the art glass is one of the most beautiful I've seen. I tend to favor ones with the berry pontil, but the blend of vaseline and blue opal is stunning. The Texas department store Larry is thinking of is spelled Kohl's Shirley, thanks for the suggested sites for agate ware. I have a couple of Macintyre agate ware salts and know more about them now.
158 E. Jane Koble★ 12-21-2015 12:22 PM ET (US)	We actually have Kohl's in York, too.
159 Debi Raitz★ 12-21-2015 01:21 PM ET (US)	OK...Hard to tell if one is joking or not on here. Nancy V, I assume you're joking about Kohl's in Texas vs. Cole in England. Larry was in retail at Kmart over 30 years so I believe him when it comes to anything to do with retail. He actually runs his eBay store as if he's a store manager again but that's become sort of a running joke around here. Most of his friends from Kmart also have eBay stores. LOL Jytte: A Flora Danica is definitely a salt to die for. I am reasonably sure I will never own one. Shirley: I looked at that website and clicked through all the pictures. The way they make the agate pattern and the multi-colored ones is really something. On your friend's museum website, I hope he adds some pictures of the different cases. They are fun to look at and drool over. It's fun to see the salts and hear the stories of what got us interested in them.
160 shirl 12-21-2015 04:42 PM ET (US)	THANKYOU to everyone for your kindness,WISHING ALL the lovely ladies & gentlemen on OPENSALTS a VERY MERRY XMAS & HAPPY HEALTHY & SAFE NEW YEAR,HAPPY NEW YEAR TO AMERICAN TROOPS ,THANKYOU AMERICA FOR HELPING AUSTRALIA FROM THE JAPANESE INVASION 1940's,I REMEMBER DAD COMING HOME FROM THE WAR I WAS 5 YRS,old, GOD BLESS ALL.
161 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-21-2015 04:46 PM ET (US)	No kidding, Debi. There is a big department store chain here named Kohl's. It's sort of mid-range price, closer to Kmart than to Neiman Marcus. The only Cole name I know is the shoe brand Cole-Hahn.
162 Debi Raitz★	Kohl's is nationwide Nancy. We have them here too. That's why I thought you were joking. Maybe there weren't any in Hawaii but they

12-21-2015 05:03 PM ET (US)	are all over here. I'm pretty sure my mortarboard salt is English so the Cole mark would have to be English. I bought it from England too. It's the agate style of MacIntyre but the Cole mark and the replica Doulton mark are all I can see. Kent's pretty darn good with English salts...Do you know anything about it Kent?
163 Nancy Dietel 12-21-2015 06:06 PM ET (US)	 Love Lily of the Valley. So this salt is special.

She always set her dining table with individual salts & silver nut dishes. After her death, my cousin gave me the salts and that was the beginning of my collection.
166 E. Jane Koble★ 12-21-2015 10:02 PM ET (US)	Oh, Mary! Just think what trouble we could get into if we didn't live on opposite sides of the country!

188 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-23-2015 12:11 PM ET (US)	 I don't have many swans, but Nancy D's pretty snowy swan reminded me that I have a stored photo of a Burtles and Tate swan that I bought in England years ago, the smallest of a group they made, good size for a salt. It's opalescent canary and would probably be my favorite no matter how many swans I had. What's the name for a group of swans?
189 Nancy C Villaverde★ 12-23-2015 12:16 PM ET (US)	Wow, look at all the animal group names if you want the table of names!
