	 Truth is I broke this one in my move, still had a photo. I bought it in an English Antique Mall years ago.
13 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-01-2016 12:41 PM ET (US)	 I've posted this Moser pedestal before, never get tired of looking at it.
14 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-01-2016 12:44 PM ET (US)	 I have a string of these old pedestals salts with lemon squeezer foot, but they are on a high shelf, so please imagine more. Bowls are usually cut with a wafer connecting to a pressed foot.
15 Mary Kern ★ 03-01-2016 12:55 PM ET (US)	Very nice showing Nancy !!
16 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-01-2016 12:59 PM ET (US)	It only I were taller! LOL

17 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-01-2016 01:01 PM ET (US)	I'm waiting for you to complete yours, Mary. Only amber so far? I'm sure you have loads more.
18 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 01:55 PM ET (US)	 Enamel oval pedestal. Don't know much about it except bought it from Nola and she said it was French. I know they traveled a lot and maybe that's where she bought it. Not marked so difficult to say. I think she said it was one of a pair.
19 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 01:57 PM ET (US)	 Inside view. I think brown is an unusual color for enamel.
20 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 01:57 PM ET (US)	 Bottom view
21 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 02:07 PM ET (US)	 The paint applied to this is called "Clobbering". It was done in the factory to add more color to transferware. I've only seen a few examples of this. I had another - I think it was the same salt but with brown transfer - but I sold it years ago. At one time I was trying to collect all the different colors of transferware on this same salt but gave up.

22 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 02:10 PM ET (US)	 China salt with added flower that mimics the English Hobnail glass pattern.
23 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 02:12 PM ET (US)	 Light blue boat shape pedestal
24 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-01-2016 02:27 PM ET (US)	Love all three china pedestals, Debi. #21 is especially attractive. I had it in green transfer for a while. Is the enamel over metal?
25 Debi Raitz ★ 03-01-2016 03:15 PM ET (US)	In pictures 18-20, it's enamel over copper. On the side not shown in my picture there are a couple chips at the base and it's definitely copper.
26 E. Jane Koble ★ 03-01-2016 05:13 PM ET (US)	Beautiful, Nancy and Debi!
27 Lynda LaLonde ★ 03-01-2016 05:59 PM ET (US)	Nancy V, beautiful, just beautiful. The Moser takes my breath away. The green with lemon squeezer foot.....color is rich with beauty. Edited 03-01-2016 06:00 PM

31 Nancy C Villaverde★ 03-02-2016 03:02 PM ET (US)	Nancy, is your #29 Baccarat? The name is raised letters and number inside the bowl. May have messed up the spelling. Mine is round and fades from deep colored edges to paler pink.
32 Nancy Dietel★ 03-02-2016 05:47 PM ET (US)	Yes, Nancy V., it is Baccarat. The name didn't come to me when I was posting. I think the color was named "rosetiente" or something similar sounding.

	 SHORT on time and energy today - so am showing SHORT pedestals - lol lol I love this one even though it is plate - Cheap plate at that - but very similar to a French one I cannot afford --

Lynda LaLonde★ 03-04-2016 09:10 AM ET (US)	Oh Mary, your cobalt lacys are Gorgious. Susie, Beautiful group. Beautiful, beautiful. I wish Kent would post his Gorgians.
56 Janelle 03-04-2016 09:53 PM ET (US)	So many salts that are beyond Beautiful. Such a great way to while away time looking at them all.
57 Don Rabourn 03-05-2016 08:14 PM ET (US)	Susie, I've never seen anything like the Bohemian decoration on a "boat" pedestal!! That was a REAL FIND(wish I'd have "found" it!)
58 Jytte 03-07-2016 11:58 PM ET (US)	 Such beauties.....droooool And here one from my clear glass collection England - Ireland I think
59 Jytte 03-08-2016 12:00 AM ET (US)	 One more Sweden or England
60 Jytte 03-08-2016 12:03 AM ET (US)

	 And Ireland or England??
61 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-08-2016 11:14 AM ET (US)	Your #59 has an unusual foot, Jytte. Is is open on the base, like a lemon-squeezer? I've never seen a lobbed shape like that. Love it!
62 Mary Kern ★ 03-08-2016 07:52 PM ET (US)	Yes Jytte - Marvelous base on that one - Of course I am drooling on all the clear pedestals -- Love them as much as the colored ones - Hey - Maybe more -- Thanks for putting us over the top again --
63 Susie P ★ 03-08-2016 07:54 PM ET (US)	Marvelous Jytte! And M!!! we want to see your clear pedestals, where are they???????? Not out in the cornfield???????????? HA!
64 Jytte 03-09-2016 12:26 AM ET (US)	 Thanks for your kind comments :-) Nancy V - on my item no 163953 you can see the bottom - and item no 169397 a little like (but not oval) Salt: Lacy and I think from France or Sweden (Neal OP 7)

	 And the same in blue
66 Lynda LaLonde★ 03-09-2016 09:16 AM ET (US)	Beautiful Jytte. BEAUTIFUL., Love the clears and the Lacys.
67 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-09-2016 01:02 PM ET (US)	Jytte, the photos seem to show that the oval salt below has the opening on the base while the round one has a flat base. Is that right? Both are interesting a obviously old designs. Origin is almost impossible to determine on these old pedestals.
68 Jytte 03-09-2016 04:15 PM ET (US)	 Thanks Lynda... Nancy - have you tried looking in opensalt.dk on the two item no I wrote? There you'll find photo's of the bottom etc Salt: From Europa??? where I don't know
69 Debi Raitz ★ 03-09-2016 04:42 PM ET (US)	Nancy V: I think sometimes a little bit gets lost in the translation. On Jytte's own website at www.saltkar.dk , she has different views of the salts she posts here. The two numbers in post #64 are the numbers of her salts you can look up on her website. In case anyone does not know, Jytte's website is linked through her collection page. Look for it at the top of her page. FYI - it does look like that gorgeous pedestal with the lobed base does have a lemon squeezer in the base.
70 Kent Hudson

03-10-2016 01:52 AM ET (US)	 I wonder if this salt is similar to Jytte's #59. It has scallops around the base and a lemon squeezer bottom. The bowl is what I call thin walled. It has molded ribs (dip molded?) that have been notched and between the ribs there are cut swags. This salt is oval, but I have a round salt with a round base same design.
71 Kent Hudson 03-10-2016 01:54 AM ET (US)	 Closeup of base in #70.
72 Kent Hudson 03-10-2016 02:03 AM ET (US)	 Another thin walled dip molded salt with an unusual base. I also have round salt with square base, same design. The ribs on this salt go about 2/3 of the way up and end in a molded arches between the ribs.
73 Kent Hudson 03-10-2016 02:05 AM ET (US)	 Hard to get a picture of the arches between the ribs, #72, but here is a try.
74 Jytte 03-10-2016	Kent - your #72 salt is so special and beautiful. What is the size of it?

03:21 AM ET (US)
75 Kent Hudson 03-10-2016 09:27 AM ET (US)	Jyette, the salt is table size, 3 1/2 inches long, 2 1/4 inches wide, and 3 inches tall. Thanks for the complement.
76 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-10-2016 11:35 AM ET (US)	Thanks for those additional details about Jytte's website, Debi. I had found it but it's easy to overlook that little link on the collection page. I only wish I had the record of my collection as complete as hers.
77 Jytte 03-10-2016 01:35 PM ET (US)	Oh Nancy - it'll only take "a couple" of hours 😊😊😊 to get a site like mine 😊😊😊 and then it's very easy when I'm adding pictures here on Debi's site Kent - Thanks for the informations
78 Lynda LaLonde★ 03-10-2016 01:36 PM ET (US)	Kent, Beautiful. Very nice oval pedestals. Please show us more

92 Lynda LaLonde★ 03-14-2016 12:15 PM ET (US)	Thank you Jane. I kind of wonder if these type oval pedestals are really old?
93 Nancy C Villaverde★ 03-14-2016 02:35 PM ET (US)	General answer is that they are all likely a hundred years or more old, Lynda. It seems the lemon squeezer foot is typical of antique ones. Newer pedestals don't seem to have that feature.
94 Susie P 03-14-2016 02:59 PM ET (US)	Lovely salts Lynda!!!! I'd say you have a large! Collection, so neat to see😊😊😊

138 Janelle 03-21-2016 02:33 AM ET (US)	 I am not sure if this HJ 329 as it has opalescent and the points are rounded. It has what looks like a W under the base.
139 Debi Raitz 03-21-2016 06:58 AM ET (US)	Janelle: Opalescent rims will always be smoother because they were basically melted to make the glass change color. I don't know if they used blow torches or if there was some other method, but it does melt the glass. The opalescent WREATH AND SHELL aka MANILA loses the ribbing or notches on the rim. The clear glass have them but they are almost totally gone on the opalescent ones. I'm not sure without looking it up which company (Maybe Summit?) reproduced the Westmoreland pedestal salt, but I do know some reproductions also had the mark.
140 Janelle 03-21-2016 08:03 AM ET (US)	Thank you Debi, I bought this one many years ago. Nice to know possible makers. It is a pretty salt , even if a reproduction.
141	136 is gorgeous, Janelle! How long is the Sowerby? I've never gotten one of this type, but I know some are very large.

142 Susie P ★ 03-21-2016 02:08 PM ET (US)	Janelle, That basket with the Putti and Roman heads is beyond amazing!!! Totally gorgeous!!!!
143 E. Jane Koble ★ 03-21-2016 04:09 PM ET (US)	Very nice, Susie. I like your #131 a lot, too.
144 Janelle 03-21-2016 04:48 PM ET (US)	Nancy, The Sowerby is not large, the actual bowl is 3 1/2" long, handle to handle edge 4 3/8" and highest point on end is 2 1/4"
145 Nancy C Villaverde ★ 03-21-2016 04:55 PM ET (US)	Thanks, Janelle. I didn't mean this particular pattern, but A Sowerby with swans on it is over 5" long. H&J 139. Now that would hold a lot of salt! About a whole box of Mortons I think.
146 Janelle 03-21-2016 04:58 PM ET (US)	I just love rescrolling through all the salts, everytime I see a bit that I missed before, a flower here, a different edge there etc. I don't think I have ever seen one that I would not be proud to have in my collection.
147 Janelle 03-21-2016 04:59 PM ET (US)	144. Height is 2 1/4"

151 Lynda LaLonde ★ 03-22-2016 02:31 PM ET (US)	Ohhhhh Susie P. and J.J., wicked nice pedestals. Susie, you have some wonderful lacy's. When you are ready to sell any one of those double lacy's you have, please keep me in mind. I love lacy's, and pedestals, and intaglios and.....on and on.
152 Debi Raitz ★ 03-25-2016 04:11 PM ET (US)	I can't really think of a unique topic - one we have not done before. How about if we do Green Salts in April? It's been 4 years since we did it before.
153 E. Jane Koble ★ 03-25-2016 05:00 PM ET (US)	Yea - my favorite color!
154 Lynda LaLonde ★ 03-25-2016 07:43 PM ET (US)	Works for me.
155 Mary Kern ★ 03-26-2016 07:34 PM ET (US)	 Just got these today - The pictures do NOT do them justice - Under the diamond cutting is a row of round thumb prints - Heavy suckers too -- Yep - I have a couple green salts also -- When I went looking for oval pedestals - I found that most of my pedestals have round bowls -- Maybe we could do round pedestals one month - or did I miss that one --
