Yep, that's a good one Mary. I have a divided one like that but with a different painted decoration and shield. Cute hippo. We'll have to do "the zoo" again shortly. Animal salts are cute.

Shown in The OSC Plate 550 - Unfortunately no information -
Glad you found the monthly topic Scott - It will get better as the days go along -
Thanks for the topic Debi - Gives me a chance to step away from the convention every once in a while - I go see if I can find some silver - Ball-and-claw - Hooves go here too I hope --

Some absolutely amazing pieces! Astounding how much variety there is in these items.

Nancy, that piece reminds me of an otter on its back balancing the cup on its belly, especially since it has ears and a pronounced tail. ;-)

Graybeard, the turtle salt was made years ago for a collector near Corning, N.Y. The artist usually made Steuben glass. He did several free form animal salts for Ruth Darmstadt. Some of the old timers might remember her. I bought two of the salts at an auction of some of Ruth's salts at least 15 years ago. Can't remember what the other animal is.
I think that you mistook the turtles eyes for ears. The artist did the animals in free form lamp work technique.

6th Convention salt, 2009. This Majolica salt was made in two forms, this single and a double. Not sure what the feet are supposed to represent, perhaps moss. I don't think they were very popular, I know I was disappointed when I received mine, but then, I'm not a fan of Majolica.

Sorry... I've been really tied up with ebay and totally away from the board... sooo I have to go all the way back to (I think #68??)...Lynda... I only have the one turtle... and yes... VERY lucky to have all the tootsies on my turtle !!! And... lucky enough to have three shoes... one just went up on ebay... one more to follow... I have two skates... one old and one repro... photos to follow... right now.. my brain is sooo fogged... I can't remember which is which...
You all have posted soooo many BEAUTIFUL salts !!! I'm afraid mine are just so basic !!! WOW !!! LOVE them all !!! Here come the skates !!!

156 Sue Sawyer 04-15-2017 07:54 PM ET (US) IP: 98.29.108.9	Had somewhat good news yesterday. For five months I've been waiting for surgery on my neck...diagnosed as spinal stenosis supposedly caused by a fall I took in October. Went to see the surgeon in December after two months of physical therapy which didn't help, and he wanted to perform surgery right away. I told him we were going to Florida for the winter and we could do it in the spring (after convention). Didn't like him much anyway. The pain got pretty bad while we were in Florida and driving down and back, but I didn't want to let hubby down as that is the one thing he still wants to do. So we went to a new surgeon yesterday, and they took new x-rays because the ones the other doc took were "worthless." He took one look at the x-rays and said it really looked ugly in there. He said it was one of the worse cases of osteoarthritis he'd ever seen and suggested that it might even be rheumatoid arthritis. He wants me to see a rheumatologist this week. He tested me umpteen ways for strength, agility, etc. and said he'd like to try a regimen of pain/anti-inflammitory drugs before going for surgery. So for now that's what I'm doing and hoping it works for the pain and I can put off the surgery for a while at least.
157 Sue Sawyer 04-15-2017 07:55 PM ET (US) IP: 98.29.108.9	Sorry, I posted the previous message under the wrong category.

159 nancy Villaverde 04-16-2017 02:12 PM ET (US) IP: 97.99.220.53	So often a second opinion is helpful. best wishes, Sue. I don't think a little while at the computer is over doing it for me. I hope the out-patient PT I start tomorrow isn't too tough. I've arranged transportation for the first session or two instead of driving myself until I see how it goes. Edited 04-16-2017 02:14 PM

161 mary 04-16-2017 06:17 PM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	Oh Sue - That is better news and perhaps if surgery is needed since it would be to remove the arthritic growth it could be done by laser or at least not the ugly wugly I got - Hope the new meds help you and give you some relief - I really believe they will - and I don't think we have a right or wrong board to post some hopefully better news -- See you soon --
162 mary 04-16-2017 06:21 PM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	I am getting so forgetful - Nancy V - Hope it all goes well - Have you been given permission to drive yet - Different muscles used in driving as opposed to walking - Glad you are progressing on the plus side - And I should have put my puppy dog footsies on this board rather than the main board - Not sure what is going on with me but certainly hope it clears up rather quickly once the convention is history --
163 Susie P 04-17-2017 08:36 AM ET (US) IP: 107.77.194.14	Sue, Glad you got the second opinion and hopeful the new meds/regimen gives you some relief! Hugs to you!
164 Lynda LaLonde★ 04-17-2017 01:45 PM ET (US) IP: 75.89.28.183	Sue S, wishing you so much luck with "Arther." I named him as he has been with me for so long. My hands are knobby. All sports related damage. Be sure to take those anti-inflames with food. Be kind to your tummy. Around 11 years ago I started taking Costocondroitin, MSM, Boswella, Hyaluronic acid. It's helped me not get worse, and decrease the pain. They might help you.
165 nancy Villaverde 04-18-2017 12:30 PM ET (US) IP: 97.99.220.53	Mary, I have permission to drive but haven't ventured out yet. I went to out-patient PT yesterday using transportation provided by my apartment complex. It was a day with heavy rains and I had to go to a place I'd never been, so a ride seemed best. I'm working up to driving later this week. My right leg is good so I should be o.k.
