I have a master Berch leaf flat rim in milk glass but no picture. This is the only other milk glass I have.
I'm not really fond of milk glass. Just doesn't tickle my pickle.

Love your 26 Linda - I do have all white - though you have already posted some of the ones I have - Must list a few for eBay this evening - Need to keep you drooling and bidding - lol lol -- Then I will get pictures of my all white salts - Since I do not have many will do one salt to a picture like you did - I knew pure white could be beautiful - but have to say again your no. 26 is precious to say the least - I will be back in a cloak of sterile white --

Okay I found one I had a picture for - but only because it is going to be listed momentarily - so while it is still mine - It is a Wedgwood piece with an apparent pattern name of Patrician - Has a black stamp that says all that plus Made in England and then here's the kicker at the bottom of the stamp it says USA Patent applied for - Go figure - also has WEDGWOOD embossed in the pottery -

This French white double could be over 100 years old, or made last year, the company in France that makes them has made the same design for that long, actually it was started in 1818, this one is marked Pillivuyt France.

Lots of pretty "snow" white salts. It's funny because when I made up this page all our snow had melted away but within hours it's started snowing those big fluffy flakes. The trees looked so pretty. Everything is white again.
Linda H: Fostoria never made the leaf nut dish in milk glass. It is by L. E. Smith. Here's a link to the page that's on the website on the Fostoria nut page. That page can be accessed by a link in the text at the top of the page.

I love the Portieux Vallerysthal things, all of them, I've seen a picture of a large hen on nest that had the original paint on it- very detailed and gorgeous. So Poland was copying the hen too, very interesting, and that means if it isn't marked who knows who made it!

Linda - when I worked with my site I found out, that some of the hens are made all over the world - only the amber say "Made in Taiwan"....but in a way when you sit with the hens in your hand....you can feel if they are old or "new" ...the ones at the pic here I think are new Alabaster, not marked. Seller sold high end Tiffany and Steuben glass and told me it was Steuben, but I don't know for sure.

Additional note: This is not a Steuben salt or nut shape according to the Steuben article in a past newsletter. Maybe it was a mini vase, like some of the Daum pieces.

Wow - a simple show site has become an information site - It is great that just showing salts can bring out a great discussion on them and each having a small piece of the puzzle - Sometimes all the pieces show up --
Sorry to be so behind - My goat is some sort of old plastic - Sort of like what was

IP: 72.220.215.254	used way back when for dolls heads - When everyone was here for the open house - No one had seen one or anything similar and we could not figure out the material - I was looking at it again and the best I could come up with was that old plastic - But there is no "blow hole" -
121 nancy Villaverde 03-10-2018 11:57 AM ET (US) IP: 97.99.220.53	Glad you didn't need to lick the goat, Mary. I'm just full of bad suggestions.
122 Debi Raitz★ 03-10-2018 03:14 PM ET (US) IP: 69.14.123.141	Mary: I was going to suggest it might be some type of resin material. Somewhere in the back of my mixed up mind I am thinking there were some collectible figurines with amazing detail that were made of resin, but can't remember what they were.
123 E. Jane Koble★ 03-10-2018 04:50 PM ET (US) IP: 73.130.190.240	I am amazed, Mary. I really thought it was carved rock salt.
124 Mary 03-10-2018 05:25 PM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	I thought it was too when I was looking at the pictures before it arrived - was really amazed when it arrived and it was not - extremely light weight - I think resin would crack if run over - this gives me the feeling it would just expel air and squish - Hmm - a gaseous goat that needs a salt lick -
125 Linda H 03-10-2018 05:44 PM ET (US) IP: 174.217.29.217	Was the resin Syroco? I know I'm probably not spelling that right, but in the 60s & 70s and maybe beyond there were a lot of decorations in this plastic stuff. Just got smart and googled it= Syracuse Ornamental Company Syracuse university site says the started making a wood based plastic in 1890, after several sales the co closed in the 2000s https://library.syr.edu/digital/guides/s/syroco.htm
126 Debi Raitz★ 03-10-2018 11:05 PM ET (US) IP: 69.14.123.141	Linda: That name doesn't ring any bells with me. I am thinking of some cutesy figurines - maybe animals - that you might have seen in a Hallmark store or someplace similar. Just can't think of what they were. Mary: You would think something like that would be marked. It probably had a label at one time.
127 E. Jane Koble★ 03-11-2018 10:04 AM ET (US) IP: 73.130.190.240	The ones I've seen were little animals that looked like wood, but they didn't look carved at all. They looked molded and were very light. It didn't seem like plastic, though, but it could have been.
128 Mary 03-11-2018 10:49 AM ET (US)	I took some closer pictures of certain areas and will post them soon - I did find out two things - 1) He is not as mushy a plastic as I remembered but has a feeling of lotion or soapiness to him ergo being hard and soft at the same time - He also does not break easy as I dropped him from the counter to the kitchen floor - DUH DUMB DUH

IP: 72.220.215.254
129 Mary 03-11-2018 10:54 AM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	 There is an unfinished mold line down his back

131 Mary 03-11-2018 10:58 AM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	 and plenty of room for a label on the base Debi

134 Jan Schmidt	Whatever he is, I like that goat, Mary. I was also admiring the FISHSCALE salt...and guess what is sitting smack dab in the middle front of my pedestal

The cat shown is stilling upright in some foliage with a spider web above its head. Could go with my pattern though it differs somewhat. I got my match holder/salt in a small flea market marked $3. At checkout I was told it had a discount and it cost me $2.40. I didn't know much about it but recognized probably Wavecrest or Mt. Washington.

Lots of pretty salts. White can be very elegant. I like that swan with gold spots. Nancy D: I have one of those salts. It looks like the one in front but I have no bird on it and no place where it looks one might have been. The frosted flower is by Imperial. Maybe Cathay pattern if I remember correctly.

Mine has the blue anchor mark too. Some things stick like glue in my head and others don't, but I think the anchor mark is Staffordshire. Could be wrong.

White with a dusting of gold. If I remember when I bought them, I was told Italian.

Janelle: the last number is 1, 2, 3 or 4. It is for quarters of the year, so yours was made in Jan, Feb or March of 1949.

I truly have a very large chore in front of me - So many salts to be assimilated into my collection without detection from all of you their rightful owners - I can do this - May take me a bit of time - but I have every confidence in myself and my incredible abilities - Until I am successful - I shall simply sit here and drool

Jytte, Royal Copenhagen with blue elements is lovely.
Thanks, Lynda I don't know how I missed it at 197, maybe because it's so clear.

221 Lynda LaLonde 03-24-2018 01:28 PM ET (US) IP: 174.131.116.250	Debi and all..... How about salts made for conventions or meetings or anniversary celebrations? Or any salts that are cut or etched to give it decoration.
222 Linda H 03-25-2018 01:50 PM ET (US) IP: 174.217.43.161	Lynda, I do like your idea, but, I don't think there'd be that many different convention or anniversary salts, but maybe modern hand made? that would include the convention & etc. salts

224 Lynda LaLonde 03-25-2018 05:12 PM ET (US) IP: 174.131.116.250	Linda, it might even cover Criders. LOVE those salts. Thought of some more topics. Salts with gold decorations. Call it Midas month. Or as April 1st is April fools how bout a month of mistakes and uglies. Salts we thought were salts and arn't and some we think look bad, bad, bad. Edited 03-25-2018 05:16 PM
225 Mary 03-26-2018 06:13 PM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	Me too - Me too - I just came up with one - Really weird so may not float - but how about - Outside the Insides - Pieces within our collections that are not salts - Like Jane could do her bears and piggies and such that are not salts but fit within her open salt collection area - I would think Debi would have other blue and white that are not salts - I have faience that are not salts - Surely you have art glass or silver pieces that are not salts - A little convoluted but then you have to remember who is throwing this out and the last couple of weeks have been - to say the least - a bit stressful on my already slip sliding away brain - Heck we could probably do a month on finger bowls we have come to love -----

Or our other collections? It could be interesting, seeing what else everyone is into. Could be interesting seeing what things we've all bought, thinking it was a salt and it's not. Where is everybody's 2 cents????? Edited 03-27-2018 01:45 PM

Debi Raitz ★ 03-27-2018 05:47 PM ET (US) IP: 69.14.123.141	OK, So we do items that may or may not be salts, and other stuff we collect besides salts. That should cover just about everything.
228 Mary 03-27-2018 07:43 PM ET (US) IP: 72.220.215.254	Well just to make sure my unclear is now perfectly clear - or at least it is to me - What I was talking about is like this - Ready ?? Okay here goes - I collect Open salts - I have a sub collection of faience open salts - in with my sub collection of salts I have knife rests - ink pots and the infamous dragon candle sticks - So under this off the wall topic - I would show my faience pieces that are not salts - Lynda you simply need to bring your intelligence level DOWN to mine if you are going to keep up with me -- I think I am getting more and more out of step with the world - Thank goodness I enjoy myself -- oh and my cats -- and my speed walker and my toys and my Christmas mooses and YES my salts - This paragraph has reached completion - Perhaps a new one at a later date --
