Judy, I've seen the holders with "jewels" but never with enamel that I can remember. Is that common and I just missed it?

Debi I don't have a large number of intaglios with holders. I don't think enameling is common on the holders. I pulled this one out of it's drawer to check the holder on it.

I've always thought it was odd that the palce card holder has a formal scene, but the salt dish has an elk; a more rustic scene. They just don't seem to go together.

This is one of my favorite dishes...Some say it isn't a salt because of the large size, but it is in my collection to stay.

Ooh, that's pretty, Debi! Of course it's blue.

Since I'm not much into metal except for art glass salts in stands, I've sold any intaglios in stands I acquired. However, (off topic warning!) I have a few of these intaglio card holders that aren't attached to salts. My sister has a large collection and has given me these. Only the one at front center is jeweled. You may recognize some of the intaglio designs. The one at the back didn't photograph clearly but is a mythological design.

Lynda: You can buy a bag of multicolored rhinestones at Michael's or any other craft store for a couple bucks if you want to replace missing ones. Joan has all her holders cleaned wonderfully and if she would graciously retell us how that is done and what she uses I promise to add it to the odds and ends page so it will always be there.

In answer to Debi's question, I use Wright's Brass Cleaner. It's a white liquid and I just pour a little on the brass holder and use a microfiber cloth and also a soft tooth brush to get into any nooks and crannies. Comes up sparkling clean and it is completely safe on all rhinestones, pearls or semi-precious stones. I get it from my local supermarket.

Here's one of my wall cabinets with some of my intaglios in jeweled holder, along with some intaglio place card holders like Jane's and Nancy's. Will take individual pictures of more of my collection and post later this week.

47 Lynda LaLonde★ 06-09-2019 08:53 PM ET (US) IP: 75.90.61.1	Joan, Nicely displayed. You have a beautiful home. Checked my brass cleaner.... it's Brasso. Used it, it worked ok. I have bumble fingers with this arthritis but holder looks better. Right now very frustrated. Had a set of 10 or 12 intaglio placeholders. Had them out on Buffet but put them away somewhere. Now can't find them. Making me crazy.

49 Debi Raitz★ 06-09-2019 10:56 PM ET (US) IP: 69.14.123.141	I have that Wright's silver polish in a jar. It sort of hardens over years but when you wet the sponge that comes with it and apply to the cream it works again just fine. I have also used a toothbrush on the little bit of silver I have. Will have to do a before and picture for the webpage, unless someone already has two good before and after pictures. I would just try to avoid rubbing or scrubbing directly on the glued in stones. The ones with prongs wouldn't be affected. Gentle rubbing won't move them. I just looked at the Michael's website and things sure have changed. They have tons of flat backside gems on strips of paper for decorating books, phones and for scrap-booking now. The bags of gems are huge (100s per bag) and now cost $15-17. But you can get the traditional type with a pointed end to glue in and the flat cabochon type too.

Don, I am so non tech. The grand babies help me with stuff. It has to be easy for me or it is a no go. I had a computer with the big box hard drive, mouse, keyboard and all that. It was too hard to take pictures, figure how to download and then send. I gave up. I got a Samsung tablet. Salt life and sharing became easy. My tablet takes the pic, downloads it, stores it and I can pull from my gallery anytime I want. I really do understand your struggle. I am, as are many, dieing to see any of your collection. Good luck with the pics. We will try, lolololol, to be patient.

O M G...DON.....You have the biggest and bestest intaglios in holders. I am beginning to wish I was your daughter!!!! I don't just love these, I'm totally infatuated. These are the kind I never see or could afford. Thank you soooo much for going thru the trouble. I'll be looking at these for a long time to come. I love this site.

Thanks "gals"! I consider myself "very lucky" to have a "photogenic memory"!! I now as soon as I see one that I've never seen before(how else could I have collected around 10,000 open salts, when I DON'T KEEP duplicates!) I also consider myself fortunate that I've never spent a "fortune" on the things I find(I guess I'm a "cheapskate", because I DON'T HAVE a FORTUNE to spend!)

These are all stunning. Had no idea there were so many I'd never seen before. Hey Jane, do you still have that car shaped one? Must post it if you do.

Susie, I don't think your green holder had more than the cover. I think it's a
